

9th April

Dear Diary,

I spent the afternoon at Grandad's house today. I am really lucky because it is at the bottom of my garden. I get to visit him whenever I want to and I know where to find the key to get in. It is definitely not under the flower pot if anyone else is reading this.

I helped him clean the living room and the kitchen. He let me use the yellow, fluffy duster and the big vacuum cleaner. I also helped him dry the plates after washing up. We went around the house carefully cleaning up until it was sparkling.

Grandad then showed me his latest painting after we had finished cleaning. One of my favourite things to do is be in Grandad's spare room and look at all of his paintings. He painted a really cool picture of a parrot last week. I hope that I can paint like Grandad one day. His latest artwork was of an island but I'm not sure which island it is. It looks like a fun place to visit though.

I had to go back home for my dinner not long after that. I do wish I could spend more time in Grandad's house. I am hoping that we can go on an adventure together soon as that would be a little more interesting than cleaning.

Syd
